

Transcript for lesson 5

Hi year two, welcome to our last literacy lesson of this week, lesson five. Gosh, we've been so busy this week, haven't we? We've been thinking so much about two new different pieces of learning which we haven't looked at before, so well done for keeping on going. I know these two bits of learning might be a little bit tricky, but that's okay. It's alright for something to be hard – we just have a go and we see what we can do. We are resilient with new bits of learning. Remember the EJ way statement "I am excited to learn new things".

So even if you're finding something hard, we don't give up. Don't let that "I can't" monster sit on your shoulder, shake him off and let it go. We're going to carry on learning about possessive apostrophes today.

So, what I'd like you to do, after we've had a look at the learning objectives the video will finish and you can click onto the link on the BBC Bitesize website. There's a really nice webpage there with a little video you can watch first of all, which explains all about possessive apostrophes and then after the video there are some little activities which you can do online – there's a quiz and other online activities which you can do to practice using possessive apostrophes. When you've watched that video and completed the activities there is a link on the website to an activity sheet I want you to have a go at doing. On that activity sheet there are sentences which do not have possessive apostrophes and your first job is to fill in the missing possessive apostrophes - the sentences are all about The Lighthouse Keeper's Lunch. Once you've had a go at filling in the missing possessive apostrophes, you can try writing your very own sentence that includes a possessive apostrophe. Your sentence has to be about The Lighthouse Keeper's Lunch.

So, there's two little jobs on there: the first is to fill in the possessive apostrophes and the last job of the week is to try and write your very own sentence which includes a possessive apostrophe. So, let's have a look at the learning objective for today:

Learning objective

I can use possessive apostrophes correctly.

Success criteria

- 1) I can read sentences aloud correctly.
- 2) I can think about where the possessive apostrophe needs to go and add it into the sentence.
- 3) I can write my own sentence that includes a possessive apostrophe.

So, when this video finishes all you need to do is click on the link to the BBC Bitesize website and have fun exploring the website page. When you've done that, click on the link to the activity sheet where you fill in the missing possessive apostrophes and then have a go at writing your own sentence which includes a possessive apostrophe.

Right, I will leave you there and I will see you next week. Have a fantastic weekend once you've finished your jobs and well done, again, for having a go at these new different types of learning. We've talked about exclamation points and possessive apostrophes – two tricky things but I'm sure you've all been having a really good go at, at home. So, well done. See you next week, bye!
