Dear parents,

The classes are enjoying learning all about woodland habitats. The children are completing beautiful pieces of artwork (including making a clay owl), writing independently about woodland creatures and observing nature in outdoor learning/science. One area of numeracy that some children are still finding more difficult is with number formation. Any extra practise of this at home would be great. Number recognition to 30 would also be worth checking with your child. Thank you.

As the weather is turning wintery, please send your child into school with a waterproof, warm coat. We do go out in all weathers at playtimes and during lessons to learn outside.

Literacy

Starting a new story called: The Fox and the Star. Getting familiar with the setting and characters.

Numeracy

Multiplication - building and counting groups of 2, 5, and 10.

Homework:

Children can bring their homework in any time. We will share the homework on the last Wednesday of the half term.

Reading

Please sign children's green reading record book so we know that their book has been read. Regular practice with your child is really beneficial to their progress.
