This week in the 'Boy Who Biked the World', Tom has arrived in Egypt. You already know a lot about how the River Nile was very important to the Ancient Egyptians, but what about today in 2020?

The River Nile is still a very important part of Egypt and Egyptian people still rely on it for farming, transport etc.

This week you need to do some research and then create a 'Guide to the River Nile' for anyone who is planning to explore and travel Egypt!

You can use some of the links below to do your research, as well finding information from other websites or books you might have at home.

Think about:

- 1) Animals and wildlife you might see
- 2) Jobs that people do on or near the river
- 3) How people use the River Nile everyday
- 4) Places of interest you might see when you travel down the Nile
- 5) Anything else you want to include, e.g. information about the Nile in Ancient Egypt.

It is up to you how you present your guide. It could be a poster, a booklet, or you could use your computer to create a presentation.
